PRESIDENT ASKS LAWS TO ADMIT DPS

Flying Discs Still Puzzling U. S. Residents

While "flying disc" stories spread over the nation, hundreds of people viewed the Pickaway county version in The Herald office and wondered.

Some believe the "contraption" found by Sherman Campbell, Westfall road, could be one of the gadgets reported seen in various parts of the country. Others say it is not.

General belief is that the six-pointed apparatus which had been attached to a balloon is used by the weather bureau to test wind velocity or some other phase of the department. The silver foil which covers it leads to the belief that it is kept track of by use of radar. In fact, Port Columbus weather bureau officials say that the gadget's description is similar to apparatus which is used by weather observers. But the explanation fails to rule out the possibility that the contraption is one of the "flying saucers." Observers point out that, suspended from a balloon the many-angled gadget would whirl in a wind. Its silvery sides would reflect any light and every one seeing the reflected brilliance would have a different idea of its shape. From a distance no one could tell the actual shape of the contraption. Observers also point out that the spinning motion would give the reflected light the appearance of traveling fast.

MR. CAMPBELL first sighted the mysterious object on his farm near the Pickaway-Ross county line about a week ago. He thought at first it was an empty fertilizer sack which had bleached out white. While plowing July 4th he picked up the gadget and brought it to his barn.

Listening to news broadcasts concerning the discs Saturday morning Mr. Campbell startled his family by announcing "I think I have one of those things out in the barn."

He joined him in further examination of the gadget and all agreed that it could be one of the mysterious objects seen all over the country. Mrs. Campbell called the radio station to which they had been listening and news of the find began to spread. Only part of the balloon which had been attached to the gadget was the heavy rubber base and a small piece of the inflated part. On the heavy paper which covers the wooden frame appears the letters "W. V. V." Decipherable letters on the balloon base are "L. M. Y. RCX 210".

A similar gadget was found on the Flying M ranch near South Bloomfield Saturday and the state highway patrol said several reports of finding objects which answer the same description had been received.

TRUMAN WANTS U. S. TO GIVE REFUGEES AID

Homeless Europeans Should Be Extended Haven, Congress Told

WASHINGTON, July 7—President Truman asked congress today to enact emergency legislation permitting the entry into the United States of "a substantial number" of displaced persons in Europe.

Mr. Truman told congress, in a special message, that there are a million such persons in Germany, Austria and Italy. He said that this country should open its doors to a substantial portion of those who survived persecution.

The President's appeal to congress was a reiteration of previous requests that the United States become a haven for its share of Europe's homeless. However, he never recommended a set figure.

MR. TRUMAN explained that these people are the remnants of seven million refugees who already have been returned to their homes in Europe. He said that the remainder are survivors of persecution "who are unwilling by reason of political opinion and fear of persecution to return to the areas where they once had homes."

The President explained that the great majority of them came from areas now under Russian domination—the northern Baltic areas, Poland, Russian Akraine and Yugoslavia.

He said that a survey of the occupational backgrounds of those in displaced person camps in the American occupation zone show they have a wide variety of training in the professions, crafts, and various skills.

HE DECLARED: "These are people who oppose totalitarian rule, and who because of their burning faith in the principles of freedom and democracy have suffered untold privation and hardships."

"Because they are not Communists and are opposed to Communism, they have staunchly resisted all efforts to induce them to return to Communist-controlled areas."

"It is unthinkable that they should be left indefinitely in camps in Europe. We cannot turn them out in Germany into the community of the very people who persecuted them."

TAX CUT BILL TO BE UP IN HOUSE TUESDAY

WASHINGTON, July 7—The house rules committee today cleared the way for consideration tomorrow of the four-billion-dollar income tax cut bill vetoed by President Truman.

The bill provides for income tax reduction of from 30 to 10 and one-half per cent, depending on income, for the nation's 48 and one-half million taxpayers.

It is identical with the measure recently vetoed by the President, except that the effective date is Jan. 1, 1948 instead of July 1, 1947.

The rules committee limited debate on the measure to two hours. Speaker Joe Martin predicts that the Republican-sponsored bill will be passed without four hours after it reaches the floor.

CATCH KILLS MAN

BELLEFONTAINE, O., July 7—Excitement of landing a six-pound carp at Indian lake, near Bellefontaine, was blamed today for the death of a 68-year-old retired farmer from Mechanicsburg. Logan county coroner A. J. McCracken said that C. L. Gaver died of a heart attack while fishing with his wife from a bank on the shore of the lake.

Corn Soars To New High Mark Again

CHICAGO, July 7—The price of corn soared to a new record price of $2.17 1/4 a bushel today on the Chicago board of trade.

The record was set by the July contract which since June 20 has been shattering the $2 mark consistently.

Last top price was established Saturday when July corn went to $2.13 on a commission house crop forecast of the smallest harvest in 50 years.

Today's record, made midway in the day's trading session, represents a price advance of 4 1/4 cents over Saturday's last price for the delivery.

The heavy demand for July corn is stimulated by unusually small spot market offerings and the fact that futures contracts for delivery this month are selling considerably below cash market corn.

HOLIDAY DEATHS PASS 500 MARK

Fatalities From Drownings, Plane Cracks Added To Traffic Victims

By International News Service Smashups on highways choked with homeward bound motorists sent the July Fourth weekend death toll past the 500 mark today.

The tremendous outpouring of cars yesterday led observers to believe that traffic deaths might surpass the National Safety Council's pre-holiday prediction of 275.

Fatalities from drownings, plane crashes and miscellaneous accidents swelled the three-day holiday total.

IN THE EAST, where two million New Yorkers returned to the city by cars, buses and trains, the death toll for the state was 47. Sixteen deaths were due to traffic accidents and 16 from drownings.

The greater Philadelphia area reported 31 fatalities. There were 13 drownings, nine traffic deaths, six plane crash fatalities, one train death and two fatal fireworks accidents.

COAL STRIKE ALMOST SURE AS DEADLINE NEARS

WASHINGTON, July 7—A coal strike appeared almost inevitable today as a four-hour session between John L. Lewis and northern operators failed to produce a new contract to assure re-opening of the mines tomorrow.

Charles O'Neill, chief spokesman for northern Appalachian operators, told newsmen after the meeting that "the contract still is not finished, but we are coming back this afternoon."

O'Neill, Harry Moses, head of U. S. Steel's coal subsidiary, and their attorneys, conferred with union representatives from about 8:15 a. m. to 12:20 p. m. (EST) today in an effort to complete the new mine wage contract.

Ohio C of C Criticizes Rising Costs Of State

COLUMBUS, O., July 7—Ohio business doesn't like the rising cost of Ohio government.

The voice of Ohio's big business, the Ohio Chamber of Commerce, reported today that the 97th Ohio general assembly which concluded its deliberations just one week ago increased the state's level of spending for current operating expenses by 47 per cent over those of the last biennium, and by 67 per cent over the years 1943-44.

THE FIGURES, released in advance of the chamber's newest research study of state government finances, placed operating appropriations for 1947-48 at $477,203,552, as against actual costs of $325,410,956 in 1945-46 and $286,103,004 in 1943-44.

The forthcoming publication, entitled "State Budget of 1947-48," will be released in a few weeks, executive vice-president Herschel C. Atkinson reported. It is designed to show all major classifications of spending authorized by the legislature.

For personal service—salaries and wages—the legislature appropriated a total of $67,388,455, or 47 per cent more than the $55,596,087 in 1945-46 and 97 per cent higher than in 1943-44.

"Since the number of state jobs has not been greatly increased," said Atkinson, "the bulk of the 97 per cent increased cost for salaries in four years represents higher salary levels and upgrading of employees." The chamber statement reported the total appropriations, excluding rotary funds, soared to $687,319,107, a 58 per cent increase over the $435,790,519 figure for 1945-46. It is 86 per cent higher than the $369,003,935 spent in 1943-44.

The figure includes all operating expenses, "additions and betterments" as capital improvements are called, highway, conservation and liquor department funds, and the contingent 25 million appropriation for a soldier bonus if the people vote a bonus

November 6.

Public school subsidies of $163,136,218 represent a 42 per cent increase over the $114,478,700 of two years ago and 46 per cent above the 1943-44 figure.

Welfare institutions, which are to receive $38,620,050, are up 30 per cent over the previous high of $29,816,974, and up 69 per cent from the appropriation of four years ago.

Aid for the aged payments are provided with $127,646,550, 36 per cent higher than two years ago and 40 per cent above the 1943-44 level.

PINNED UNDER HAY William Wilkes, 16, of 147 Logan street, was given first aid at 4 p. m. Saturday in Berger hospital for minor injuries he sustained when a load of baled hay upset and he was caught between a wagon and a tractor on a farm below Nash. The youth was attended by Dr. J. M. Hedges.

IN SPECIAL SESSION BATAVIA, July 7—The republican news agency Antara reported that the Indonesian republican cabinet was called into emergency session at Jogjakarta today.

SEVEN PERSONS HURT WHEN AUTO RAMS INTO BUS

Passengers Escape Injury In Three Other Traffic Crashes Here

Seven persons were hurt and 43 others escaped injury in four Sunday traffic accidents in Circleville.

The seven were riding in a coupe which rammed the rear of a Valley Greyhound bus which stopped at South Court and Town streets to pick up a passenger at 5:45 p. m. The injured were removed to Berger hospital in Defenbaugh's ambulance, in the police cruiser, and by passing motorists. All were released after receiving emergency aid at the hospital.

The police report said the north-bound bus was operated by Charles T. Rohr, 973 Franklin avenue, Columbus, and that the bus carried 28 passengers. The rear of the bus and the front of the McCloud auto were damaged, and the windshield of the McCloud coupe was shattered.

At 5:15 p. m. Sunday three autos figured in a mishap on South Court at Logan street. Olan Lama, 44, Route 1, Rockbridge, driving south, started to turn left onto Logan street. The rear of the Lama machine was struck by a south-bound sedan operated by James Dawson, 64, Portsmouth. Driving north on Court street, Lloyd Gibson, 22, Detroit, Mich., ran his sedan over a curb in order to avoid hitting the Lama car. The injured car occupants included four in the Lama auto, three in the Dawson machine, and two in the Gibson car.

At 6:45 p. m. Sunday a coupe driven south on North Court street by Harry F. Davis, 21, Route 1, Stoutsville, rammed the rear of the south-bound sedan which Robert F. Hart, 35, Lancaster, had stopped for a red light at High street. Both cars were damaged. Unhurt were five persons in the Hart machine and two in the Davis auto.

Driving east on U. S. Route 22 at 9:45 p. m. Sunday, William J. Thomas, 61, Circleville, said he was blinded by the lights of an oncoming auto. He swerved his car to the left and struck the bridge over the Scioto river. His car was badly damaged but Thomas and a passenger in his machine escaped uninjured.

Sheriff Charles Radcliff, who claims Trent admitted the killing and confessed that he set fire to the dwelling in an attempt to "cover up" the crime, said that Trent has thus far given no indication of remorse.

CHECKS ON FLOOD WASHINGTON, July 7—President Truman will canvass the Mississippi valley flood situation this afternoon with top experts of the Tennessee Valley authority and the Army engineer corps.

WASHINGTON, July 7—Several Cleveland doctors came up with another explanation today of the "flying saucers."

Drs. Dwight S. and Elizabeth Spreng said the flying disks were nothing more than corpuscles in the eyes of the observers.

According to the doctors any person who looks at a bright background which is evenly illuminated will see the shadows of the red of white blood corpuscles moving in the capillaries over the retina of the eye.

Dr. Spreng said the corpuscles in the eye would appear like gray or silver disks moving with varying velocity of peed and with a jerky motion.

AFTER BOARDING train at Albany, N. Y., that will carry him on a 4,500-mile western tour, New York Gov. Thomas Dewey checks route with his sons and wife. Although the governor describes the trip as a "vacation for his two sons," it is regarded as a campaign trip to head off a reported move by Taft supporters to block his nomination for president.

Union Church Services Begin At Ted Lewis Park

Union church services sponsored by the Pickaway County Ministerial association and the Kiwanis Club began auspiciously at the Ted Lewis park shelter house Sunday night.

J. Wray Henry, president of the Circleville Kiwanis club, opened the service with a few remarks on the purpose of Kiwanis and the history of the union church services during the last three Summers. He introduced the Rev. Carl L. Wilson, president of the Ministerial association, who responded with an expression of pleasure in cooperating with the service club in such a worth-while community project.

The Rev. Mr. Wilson presided at the worship service by sounding the scriptural call to worship after which Charles Kirkpatrick, song leader, was introduced. Mr. Kirkpatrick led the congregation in singing the hymn, "Wonderful Words of Life". The prayer of invocation was offered by the Rev. Mr. Wilson after which the congregation sang the hymn, "Tell Me The Story of Jesus". The ushers received the offering. The children's chorus from the Nazarene church with Miss Mary Lutz directing sang the anthem, "I Would Be True". Mrs. Roy Worford and Miss Mary Lutz

There, according to nine persons, a bevy of eight shining "flying saucers" swooped on to a mountainside west of St. Maries, Ida., at twilight last Thursday.

The delayed report came from a Spokane, Wash., housewife, Mrs. Walter Johnson. She told newsmen:

"They came out of the south, travelling northward at extreme speed. They flattered and fluttered to the ground among the trees along the St. Joe river.

"There was no noise and the trees seemed to be undisturbed after they disappeared into them. They were as big as a five-room house."

Mrs. Johnson said that the point where the weird objects vanished was several miles away from the party that saw them, and night prevented a search of the rugged country. She said that she and a group of other

PLANES POISED TO GIVE CHASE AFTER 'SAUCERS'

Reports Say Squadron Of Mystery Objects Landed In Idaho Mountains

By International News Service First report of a landing by a squadron of "flying discs" was followed today by a rash of new reports of their appearance in widely scattered areas of the west.

Oregon National Guard planes were on alert, ready to chase and photograph any of the mysterious flying intruders that come within their range, while attention of the curious—and the apprehensive—turned to the mountain wilds of northern Idaho.

FLEEING M'FANN AGAIN BEHIND BARS OF JAIL

Pvt. Floyd McFann, 27, who—then known as Junior Wollam—was captured in a Ross county field near Chillicothe 10 days ago by state highway patrolmen after a chase of several hours during which the fugitive carried a one-week-old baby, was again in jail, Monday, at London.

Preceding the Ross county episode McFann had been stopped on U. S. Route 23 near Chillicothe by patrolmen because his car lights were insufficient. In the car with him were a woman at first believed to be his wife and the baby.

When it was subsequently discovered that his name was McFann rather than Wollam and that he was an Army deserter, McFann was released to the custody of Army authorities. Later McFann was lodged in the Columbus city workhouse, from which he and three other military prisoners escaped July 2 by prying loose three steel bars and then sliding down a rope improvised from Army blankets.

Madison County Sheriff Harold R. Bidwell spotted McFann while he was cruising along a London street. McFann offered no resistance and he was lodged in the county jail at London to await arrival of Army officers. McFann tried to escape from that same jail in May, 1944, by sawing through bars while he was in custody in connection with a robbery investigation, Sheriff Bidwell said.

persons plan to try to find the landing site tomorrow.

OFFICERS At the Spokane Army air base said that they were "studying" the report, but did not indicate that they would send planes to scan the area.

But if any more air mysteries develop over Oregon, a center of disc operations all last week according to numerous witnesses, planes are ready to take after them.

Eleven speedy Oregon National Guard fighters and bombers were stationed at Bend, Ore., in the heart of the state. The patrol flew from Portland to Bend without seeing any of the objects.

Several private planes established their own patrol over Portland. Discs were reported seen there yesterday by three persons.

BRIEF LANDING of a single "flying saucer" in Tempe, Ariz., was reported by Francis Howell. He said a circular object about two feet in diameter floated to earth near his home yesterday afternoon.

Howell said it went out of sight behind a clump of trees, and when he, his wife and several neighbors approached, the object rose again at a sharp angle and moved westward.

He described it as being flat and thin, apparently made of aluminum, and transparent.

Numerous persons also reported seeing from one to seven discs at various points in the San Francisco bay area yesterday. Their descriptions of the discs varied widely, from six inches in diameter to "the size of an automobile."

THE "FLYING SAUCERS" first were reported sighted June 24 in southwestern Washington. Although the Pacific coast, and particularly the Pacific Northwest, continues to be the center of reports on their activity, observers have claimed to have sighted them as far east as Augusta, Me.

They also have been reported from Colorado, Arizona, New Mexico, Ohio, Texas and Illinois.

The Army and the nation's leading scientists continued to be skeptical of the reports — although they were as full of theories about them as the man in the street.

HIGHEST authorities in the field of atomic research, including David Lillenthal, chairman of the atomic energy commission, and atomic expert Dr. Harold Urey denied that the discs have any connection with atomic experiments—if they exist.

The war and navy departments shrugged their collective shoulders, while an Army Air Force information officer, Capt. Tom Brown, said:

"This is definitely not an air forces experiment. We absolutely do not know what these flying discs are. In fact, we wish we did, but we're just as mystified as everyone else."

FBI AGENTS today reported that an object found on the grounds of St. Joseph's Catholic church at Grafton, Wis., was a circular saw, not one of the mysterious flying discs.

Finding of the object was reported by the Rev. Joseph Basky of the church. The priest reported the metal object fell on his parish grounds. He declared that he heard a whirring noise followed by an explosion.

GURNEY URGES EARLY APPROVAL OF MERGER BILL

WASHINGTON, July 7—Sen. Gurney (R) S. D., today urged the senate to approve armed forces unification legislation without delay and warned that "to procrastinate is to invite disaster."

Gurney, chairman of the armed services committee, presented to the senate the compromise bill worked out by his committee with the aid of high-ranking Army and Navy officials after 11 weeks of hearings.

The South Dakota Republican, declaring that "the time to plan, the time to prepare—is now," told the senate:

"It is not being an alarmist to point out that, with the development of supersonic planes and guided missiles with atomic war heads, the cushion of distance provided by the Atlantic, Arctic and Pacific oceans will no longer provide a corresponding cushion of time in which we may react to attack and mobilize our forces."

PETRILLO SAYS RADIO CHAINS TO BE STOPPED

WASHINGTON, July 7—James Caesar Petrillo, musicians' "czar," told congress today that his union will halt all transcontinental broadcasts of music programs after next Feb. 1.

Petrillo said the new policy of his American Federation of Musicians would prohibit local stations from transmitting musical programs originating in any other station.

He told a special house investigating committee:

"It would only be fair for each station to stand on its own feet. After Feb. 1, the AFM is not going to permit broadcasting chains to feed local stations."

The union chief, labeled a "dictator" by the head of the investigating committee, asserted there would be no transcontinental music broadcasts whatsoever.

of traffic accidents and two due to plane crashes.

Thirty holiday deaths were reported in the six New England states.

Washington, D. C., listed 14 deaths, including a freak accident where a man was crushed while pushing a truck from a garage.

Michigan's death toll was 25, including 18 traffic victims and seven drownings.

DROWNINGS WERE near the 150 mark in the 48 states. Fireworks accidents took at least seven lives, including two small girls at Elkton, Md., who were killed when sparks from a firecracker exploded other fireworks.

A pyrotechnics technician employed as a fireworks safety expert at a Skowhegan, Me., fair perished when an aerial bomb exploded on the ground.

Florida deaths totaled 20. The worst of the Florida accidents occurred Thursday night when eight persons were killed in a car-truck collision near Tallahassee.

A plane crash claimed the life of Richard Emery, 29, son of Dewitt Emery, Evanston, Ill., president of the National Small Businessmen's association. The younger Emery was killed when his private plane crashed near Akron, O.

In the Midwest, Illinois listed 22 deaths, Indiana 16, Wisconsin 15, and Iowa 8.

FRANCO CLAIMS 'BIG VICTORY' IN SPAIN VOTE

MADRID, July 7—Generalissimo Francisco Franco's government claimed "overwhelming" popular approval today of its plan for selecting his successor.

Interior minister Blas Perez Gonzalez, in the initial official announcement concerning the referendum whose outcome never was in doubt, estimated between 75 and 83 percent of the voters signified their endorsement of Franco's law. He added that the outcome, based on partial returns, will be announced tomorrow.

Perez said the estimate was based on examination of returns from such key points as Madrid, Barcelona, Zaragoza and the Basque opposition stronghold of Bilbao.

The voting was termed the heaviest in Spanish history. It was, in fact, the first time that the electorate had gone to the polls in Spain since the February, 1936, election which brought the ill-fated popular front to power.

Perez said that, apart from his personal feelings, he "never expected such a tremendous victory". The minister added that he realized that the disqualification of "politically-convicted" persons had reduced the total vote.

Justifying his prediction of "overwhelming victory," Perez stated that one Barcelona district voted 82 percent in favor of the measure which perpetuates Franco's dictatorship and provides for appointment of a successor by himself or by men of his choice.

Balloting generally appeared to have been carried out in a quiet, orderly manner.

THE PARIS CONFERENCE

THE SPLIT between the western powers and the Soviet Union at the Paris conference need not be too much deplored. Every chance has now been given the Russian government to show willingness to co-operate with the rest of the world, and every chance has been turned down. The arrogance of Molotov's statement that all the European nations needed to find out was how much each country could expect from the United States was not only illuminating, but decisive in a way beyond all previous statements from that source. Americans wish to do Mr. Molotov and his people no injustice. But that's what the news sounded like to most American readers. They resented his attitude, and justly so.

Now the issue has been clarified. The Russian government does not wish to co-operate with the rest of the world. It does not wish to go it quite alone, either. It wants what is can get from the rest of the world, without giving up any of its gains, real or fancied, present or future. The reader is once more reminded of Churchill's keen statement that the Soviet Union does not desire war, but wants the fruits of war without fighting for them.

The Russian government in its present form is very young—not quite thirty years, in fact. Compared with Britain's 1200 years, thirty years is hardly more than infancy. Compared even with our 171 years, 30 is still pretty young. Those in control of the Soviet Union have much to learn. They had better begin speedily picking up some of the facts of life, especially that one that John Bull and Uncle Sam can be pushed just so far. When that point is reached patience ceases to be a virtue and things begin to happen.

If what happens next is unpleasant for the Soviet Union, let it be clearly realized that it had its chance, but chose to bring trouble on itself.

USED CAR PRICES

THE CURRENT practice of re-selling new cars for higher prices in used-car lots has provoked the attorney-general of Michigan into seeing if he cannot revoke the licenses of dealers concerned in such resales.

Once upon a time, the man who bought a new car and drove it at all, maybe just around the block, learned that the re-sale value of his car had depreciated several hundred dollars in that short drive. Now, the breaks are the other way. One mile or a hundred, and he can make as much as he would have lost before. The temptation is irresistible, apparently, to many thousands of owners.

It is the average honest man, who would like to buy a new, or even slightly used car without spending his life savings who is out of luck today.

'ROUND CANADA - - - Hour by Hour

Pages From the Diary of An Antiquated Reporter:

Cranked the wagon and loaded down with the family and what seemed practically all of our belongings headed due North. Up and across the line into Michigan, over the Ambassador bridge into Canada, on to London and there called it the first day. Out and away at a reasonable hour the next morning and finally into Toronto. My idea of a city. Business practically suspended for most of the stores are closed all day Saturday during the Summer months.

Turned North once more and at the edge of town ran into a traffic jam. Everyone heading North. Not even at the OSU stadium or the 500 mile races have I ever seen more traffic. An hour and a quarter to move 16 miles. Under a blazing sun the radiator boiled practically dry. Hundreds of cars stalled and pulled off at the side of the road. Finally was able to keep moving, but slowly, and remained in tight traffic for 60 miles more.

Above Barrie did hear an unusual thumping, so pulled into the first filling station and learned that a tire was going to pieces and must be replaced. Left $35 and again took to the road. Called it a day at Bracebridge and put up for the night. Just half way to the North Pole, or so says a roadside sign there.

Inspected three restaurants before accepting a breakfast that could not have been worse in the first one. Canadian food is cheap, but generally terrible. Away then, and on through Calendar, North Bay, Sturgeon Falls and to Warren where did turn down under the west arm of Lake Nipissing. Then on America's worst road for four miles entering Shushwap, camp of the Greens and my favorite fishing spot. Pulled in front of the cabin with the radiator aboil again, but contented. Plenty of water out front and experience tells me that the fish are plentiful.

Ohioans in camp, a dozen of them, some from Columbus, one party from Toledo, another from Akron. All pickered fishermen and doing quite well. Not my kind of fishing, so got little information on the big pike or muskies. Lake up about five feet, but guides declare the level will not hinder sport. Makes running by motor a little dangerous, for rocks visible before are now just out of sight under water.

Found the Greens quite happy and optimistic about the season. She's from Ohio, but married the Canadian George and has been living up here since shortly after the first World War. Learned that Doc Holdren, of New York, who has been coming here for several years, has just completed a $12,000 fishing "shack" down the lake a ways. Expect to drop in there in a day or two. Everything else the same as nine years ago when I saw this territory for the first time.

Spent the evening rigging gear, picking out a boat, swapping lies with the guides and guests and then turning back to the cabin about 10 o'clock. Still some daylight. Night falls late up here. Sprayed the sleeping quarters against mosquitos, of which there always are some for a few weeks at this time of year, and then turned in, passing out almost immediately.

NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, July 7—This Fourth of July, the most profitable reading—instead of the Declaration of Independence which we all know—should be the Moscow declaration against the Marshall plan (Tass text June 29). It was sparsely reported and little read. Yet those astute readers of the trends of today in the state department have found this document, making contrasting declarations against our theory of life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness, to be the most revealing new creation of principles for super-government. It discloses Russia.

It says: "the Soviet people has already carried out more than one five-year plan. At present the Soviet people is successfully," etc.

It makes a singular noun out of 195,000,000 people in Russia. It gives them a singular verb. The American people are, but the Soviet people is.

These Soviet people is progressing well in national economy and culture, says this official statement which is obviously calculated to make the hungry of Europe resist food and aid. The diplomatic skill of a Machiavelli would hardly be equal to convincing a hungry man he should not have food, but the Kremlin advises it this way:

American capacity to produce expanded greatly during the war and therefore the only question is how Europe should divide up our surplus. Of course, we have no surpluses yet, and none in prospect except in wheat and rice. We cannot get an automobile. Our food prices are exorbitant. But Russia does not tell this truth of the matter. It tells the hungry of Europe, quote: "the rehabilitation and further development of the national economies of European countries could be facilitated if the U S A whose production capacities — far from declining — considerably increased during the war, rendered the economic assistance which these countries need."

Russia rejects the French plan for this, the British plan and the American plan, and submits a Russian plan which says that more than once, the Soviet Union quote "offered resistance to attempts at foreign interference in its affairs". The Russian plan is for Europe to take American aid, dwindle our capitalistic resources, and then Europe should go Russian (totalitarian socialist).

Thereafter Russia denounces another plan, which seems to be its own plan, namely any all-embracing plan to Europe to receive our aid, or restore itself economically with any outside help. Certain outside countries are striving toward intervention in Europe, says Russia, and this should be resisted by the conference. Apparently this means Rumania, Poland and Yugoslavia should resist Russia, as intervention has become strongest in those nations. But the "certain outside countries" are not named and thus the whole idea is to make European nations resist any non-European support.

The conference should only estimate how much of the American surplus is needed, says Russia. It adds this is no easy task and would take a long while, although any objective actuary in touch with the situation could do it alone in a few days. But Russia wishes to start as if she just came in and have the conference decide what European nations are entitled to our aid (we or they are not even at the conference at which Russia wishes to decide this). But the conference should start even before the

What May Cause Backache

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

IT is strange but true that the only complaint a patient may have is a backache when actually what he is really suffering from is an abdominal disorder.

According to Drs. Henry J. Tumen and Joseph C. Yaskin of Philadelphia, pain in the back is frequently caused by such abdominal ailments as gallstones, ulcers of the stomach or intestine, inflammation of the pancreas, colitis or inflammation of the bowels, and even by excessive amounts of gas in the digestive tract.

Many Conditions

Of course, backache may be produced by dozens of other conditions, some of them affecting the back itself. Among these are inflammation of the joints of the spine, tumors of the spine, muscle inflammation, or a displacement of some of the little disks or cushions of cartilage which separate the bones of the spine. Or again, it may be a symptom—often the only one—of a tumor of the pancreas or kidney.

Thus, the important thing to remember about backache is that it is only a symptom. Before it can be treated, the condition causing it must be discovered.

Within the Abdomen

When the backache is due to conditions within the abdomen, it is not accompanied by spasms of the muscles, limitation of the movement of the back, or changes in the curve of the spinal column. Physical activity may not cause any discomfort during the day, but pain develops during the night. Lying on the back may often make the condition worse, and the patient is usually relieved by lying in a position in which the spine is bent forward.

The pain caused by ulcer of the stomach or first part of the bowel may be felt in the back instead of the pit of the stomach. If the pain produced by such an ulcer is unusually severe, it may indicate that the ulcer has ruptured.

Collection of gas in the large bowel or colon may cause pain in the back just under the ribs. This pain is usually worse during the night or early morning, particularly if the patient suffers from constipation.

Thus, when the patient suffers from backache, it is important to know exactly where the pain is located, when it occurs, how long it has been present, and whether it interferes with the patient's activities. From these points, together with careful physical examination, including X-ray of the spine, it is usually possible to determine the source of the disorder and apply the most effective treatment.

MAKE ALL 26 CARDS AID

JUST AS during the auction, the bid bidder strives to reach the spot best adapted to his side's 26 cards, so the fine defensive player concentrates upon making his pair's 26 cards do the best possible job. That includes a proper amount of emphasis on helping his partner's hand to take tricks. The weaker defensive player is nearly always more bent on developing tricks in his own hand. In fact, that feature constitutes the main difference between a skillful defender and an average one—that effort to develop trick-takers across the table as contrasted with those on his own side of it.

SYNOPSIS

Among the guests of Lady Lucy Angkatell had been to The Hollow were attractive Dr. John Christow and his dull, plain-looking wife, Gerda. The others, all members of the Angkatell clan, were: kindly Henrietta Savernake, successful sculptress; young Midge Hardcastle, who supported herself by working in one of London's swank dress shops; David Angkatell, university student, and quiet Edward Angkatell, whose unrequited love of Henrietta made him unaware that Henrietta had long adored him. Unknown to anyone, Henrietta and John Christow had fallen deeply in love. Prior to leaving for Lucy's home in his Harley Street office trying to fathom the mood of discontent which engulfed him, while upstairs, Gerda and the children patiently awaited his appearance for lunch. He thought went back to an earlier chapter in his life, when he had been madly in love with glamorous Veronica Gray, motion picture actress. He had broken their engagement when she refused to give up her career, and later had married Gerda, whose slavish devotion had left him free to pursue his beloved profession. Henrietta had found the intelligent understanding which Gerda lacked. Recently, when exhausted after a difficult session with old Mrs. Crabtree, his favorite clinic patient, he had stopped off at her studio. He was annoyed, however, when he recognized Gerda as the model used for Henrietta's latest masterpiece, the ship. Meanwhile, in the dining room, Gerda contemplated the cooling roast, and the coming week-end, with equal despair. She did not like the Angkatells and felt awkward and uncomfortable in their company. John's arrival banished her unhappy thoughts.

CHAPTER NINE

"IF YOU hated sick people, you wouldn't be a doctor, dear," said Gerda, laughing gently.

"That's exactly the reason," said John Christow. "No doctors like sickness. Good Lord, this meat's stone cold. Why on earth didn't you have it sent down to keep hot?"

"Well, dear, I didn't know. You see, I thought you were just coming."

John Christow pressed the bell, a long, irritated push. Lewis came promptly.

"Make this down, and tell cook to warm it up."

He spoke curtly.

"Yes, sir," Lewis, slightly impatient, managed to convey in the two innocuous words exactly her opinion of a mistress who sat at the dining table watching a joint of meat grow cold.

Gerda went on rather incoherently:

"I'm so sorry, dear, it's all my fault, but first, you see, I thought you were coming, and then I thought, well, if I did send it back..."

John interrupted her impatiently. "Oh, what does it matter? It isn't important. Not worth making a song and dance about."

Then he asked her:

"Is the car here?"

"I think so. Collie ordered it."

"Then we can get away as soon as lunch is over."

Across Albert Bridge, he thought, and then over Clapham Common, and later, up Shovel Down—trees golden red—woodland below one everywhere—the soft autumn smell, and down over the crest of the hill.

Lucy and Henry... Henrietta.

He hadn't seen Henrietta for four days. When he had last seen her, he'd been angry. She'd had that look in her eyes... Not abstracted, not inattentive—that look of seeing something—something that wasn't there—something that wasn't John Christow!

He said to himself, "I know she's a sculptor. I know her work's agreeable moments. Shun acid, torrid or provoking remarks."

If it is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is are likely to encounter a year of the unforeseen, dramatic, a venturesome and unique, in which sudden upheavals may be part of the excitement and thrill. While business matters may be surprising and dynamic it is possible that the emphasis may be on home, social or sentimental celebrations, parties, and impromptu ceremonies, in which good. But, darn it all, can't she put it aside sometimes? Can't she sometimes think of me—and nothing else?"

He was unfair. He knew he was unfair. Henrietta seldom talked of her work—was indeed less obsessed by it than most artists he knew. It was only on very rare occasions that her absorption with some inner vision spoiled the completeness of her interest in him. But it always roused his furious anger.

Once he had said, his voice sharp and hard, "Would you give all this up if I asked you to?"

"All—what?" Her warm voice held surprise.

"All—this." He waved a comprehensive hand around the studio.

And immediately he thought to himself, Fool! Why did you ask her that? And again, Let her say "Of course." Let her lie to me! If she'll only say, "Of course I will." It doesn't matter if she means it or not! But let her say it. I must have peace.

Instead, she had said nothing for some time. Her eyes had gone dreamy and abstracted. She had frowned a little.

Then she had said slowly: "I suppose so. If it were necessary..."

"Necessary? What do you mean by necessary?"

"I don't really know what I mean by it, John. Necessary, as an amputation might be necessary."

"Nothing short of a surgical operation, in fact!"

"You are angry. What did you want me to say?"

"You know well enough. One word would have done. Yes. Why couldn't you say it? You say enough things to other people to please them, without caring whether they're true or not. Why not me? For God's sake, why not to me?"

And still, very slowly, she had answered:

"I don't know... really, I don't know, John. I can't—that's all I can say."

He had walked up and down for a minute or two. Then he had said:

"You will drive me mad, Henrietta. I never feel that I have any influence over you at all."

"Why should you want to have?"

"I don't know, but I do."

He threw himself down on a chair.

"I want to come first."

"You do, John."

"No. If I were dead, the first thing you'd do, with the tears streaming down your face, would be to start modeling some blasted mourning woman or some figure of grief."

"I wonder. I believe—yes, perhaps I would. It's rather horrible."

She had sat there looking at him with dismayed eyes.

The pudding was burnt. Christow raised his eyebrows over it and Gerda hurried into apologies.

"I'm so sorry, dear. I can't think why that should happen! It's my fault. Give me the top and you take the underneath."

The pudding was burnt because he, John Christow, had stayed sitting in his consulting room for a quarter of an hour after he needed to, thinking about Henrietta and Mrs. Crabtree and letting ridiculous nostalgic feelings about San Miguel sweep over him. The fault was his. It was idiotic of Gerda to try and take the blame, maddening of her to try and eat the burnt part herself. Why did she always have to make a martyr of herself? Why did Terence stare at him in that slow, interested way? Why, oh, why, did Zena have to sniff so continually? Why were they all so damned irritating?

His wrath fell on Zena. "Why on earth don't you blow your nose?"

"She's got a little cold, I think, dear."

"No, she hasn't. You're always thinking they have colds! She's all right."

Gerda sighed. She had never been able to understand why a doctor, who spent his time treating the ailments of others, could be so indifferent to the health of his own family. He always ridiculed any suggestion of illness.

"I sneezed eight times before lunch," said Zena importantly.

"Heat sneeze!" said John.

"It's not hot," said Terence. "The thermometer in the hall is fifty-five."

John got up.

"Have we finished? Good. Let's get on. Ready to start, Gerda?"

"In a minute, John; I've just a few things to put in."

"Surely you could have done that before. What have you been doing all the morning?"

He went out of the dining room fuming. Gerda had hurried off into her bedroom. Her anxiety to be quick would make her much slower. But why couldn't she have been ready? His own suitcase was packed and in the hall. Why on earth—

Zena was advancing on him, clasping some rather sticky cards.

"Can I tell you Mother, Daddy? I know how. I've told Mother's and Terry's and Lewis's and Jane's and Cook's."

"All right—"

He wondered how long Gerda was going to be. He wanted to get away from this horrible house and this horrible street and this city full of ailing, sniffing, diseased people. He wanted to get to woods and wet leaves—and the graceful aloofness of Lucy Angkatell, who always gave you the impression she hadn't even got a body.

Zena was importantly dealing out cards.

"That's you in the middle, Father, the King of Hearts. The person whose fortune's told is always the King of Hearts. And then I deal the others face down. Two on the left of you and two on the right of you and one over your head—that has power over you, and one under your feet—you have power over it. And this one—covers you!"

"Now!" Zena drew a deep breath. "We turn them over. On the right of you is the Queen of Diamonds—quite close."

Henrietta, he thought, momentarily diverted and amused by Zena's solemnity.

"And the next one is the Knave of Clubs—he's some quite young man—"

"On the left of you is the eight of spades—that's a secret enemy. Have you got a secret enemy, Father?"

"Not that I know of."

"And beyond is the Queen of Spades—that's a much older lady."

"Lady Angkatell," he said to himself.

"Now this is what's over your head and has power over you—the Queen of Hearts..."

Veronica, he thought. Veronica! And then: What a fool I am. Veronica doesn't mean a thing to me now.

"And this is under your feet and you have power over it—the Queen of Clubs..."

Gerda hurried into the room. "I'm quite ready now, John."

"Oh, wait, Mother, wait. I'm telling Daddy's fortune. Just the last card, Daddy—the most important of all. The one that covers you."

Zena's small sticky fingers turned it over. She gave a gasp. "Oo—it's the Ace of Spades! That's usually a death—but—"

"Your mother," said John, "is going to run over someone on the way out of London. Come on, Gerda. Goodbye, you two. Try and behave."

Roller pickles are easy to make if you're handy with a sharp knife. Cut quarter-inch slices lengthwise from a loaf of fresh, unsliced white bread, after removing crusts. Spread each long slice with a thin mixture of real mayonnaise and a very little ham spread. Then place two or three small pickles, or a long slender section of a dill pickle, across one end of the bread slice, roll up tightly, secure with toothpicks or by wrapping in wax paper and chill thoroughly. The document says, quote: "it would be wrong not to consider the difference which should exist in the allies' attitude in the allied states, the former enemy states and the neutral states." In other words, Russia should get first call on aid, and let occupied Germany and Rumania take the hindmost. Special consideration should be given Germany, it adds, going on and on—but is this not their intentions evident?

BASEBALL FANS JAM CHICAGO

Blackwell And Newhouse Slated To Start For All Stars Tuesday

CHICAGO, July 7.—Chicago's July sports boom took a turn for the waffle-hot today as baseball men, cramming three hotels and two public parks, second-guessed the starting pitchers and batting orders for tomorrow's annual all-star game.

Joe Cronin, manager of the American League team, and Eddie Dyer, who'll guide the Nationals, were to make their final decisions on those matters today. The "book" said Ewell Blackwell to start for the Nationals and Prince Hal Newhouse for the Americans.

Players, managers, moguls — and the ever-hopeful delegation from the Pacific Coast league—jammed their way into town, where they blended with golfers, fighters and high-priced horses.

THE DIZZY sports fan, however, was putting first things first—and the very first thing is the 14th renewal of baseball's all-star classic.

A capacity crowd of 45,000 will pack Wrigley field tomorrow to watch the Americans play visiting team to the Nationals. League president Ford Frick has announced for the 32nd time that the nationals had better win this one or else.

The before-day baseball news was interesting, as always, if not exciting. One more player change was made, Manager Dyer substituting his own Cardinal George Kuroski for Bob Elliott, the Boston Brave whom the fans voted to start at third base for the senior loop. That brought to six the number of Cardinals on the N.L. squad.

Elliott was out of the tilt due to a badly bruised index finger on his throwing hand.

IN THE MEETING rooms, Commissioner Happy Chandler called baseball's executive committee together to hear the Pacific Coast league's now-traditional plea to become a third major circuit. Once again P.C.L. prey Clarence "Pants" Rowland, assisted by several facts-and-figures gents, presented the coast's bid.

Elsewhere, the year-old players' committee awaited a routine session with the executive group. To be discussed, it was understood, was nothing more than the pursuit of night games, doubleheaders, and "off" days.

Experienced communications men reported that newspaper, radio and newsreel coverage of tomorrow's Wrigley field spectacle will equal, if not exceed, coverage of the 1945 World Series at Wrigley, in which the Cubs played the party of the second part to the Detroit Tigers.

SWEDISH HEAVY MAY NOT FACE LOUIS IN FALL

STOCKHOLM, July 7.—Olle Tandberg, unheralded 28-year-old Swedish heavyweight who thought he had earned a title bout with Joe Louis by winning a decision yesterday in a stunning upset over Joe Baksi, of Kulpmont, Pa., apparently was left holding the bag, today.

Olle wasn't sure himself he was outpointing the American in their ten-round bout, but two judges said he won (the third called it a draw) and the banner crowd of 32,000 cheered the verdict lustily.

However, many ringside critics and Lew Burston, representing the 20th Century Sporting Club, were unimpressed by Tandberg's victory. Burston, who had signed both fighters to contingent contracts to fight Louis at New York in September, said his organization would have to wait the reaction of the American press (which didn't see the bout) to decide about going through with its guarantee.

All that Tandberg could deduce from this double talk was that the champion's opponent will be selected by remote control instead of his guarantee.

Tandberg won the decision by effective use of a straight left and by opening a gash over Baksi's eye in the second round. There were no knockdowns.

Today's Horoscope

Usually you are kind, generous and sympathetic. You are quick, energetic and alert, and can generally succeed in getting your own way. You have an interesting personality, and will be married happily. The day is not good for finances and assets. Curb spending. In spite of a minor dispute or indisposition, a happy, successful year is ahead of you. Go ahead with all projects. Substantial gains are shown, also probable inheritance. Born on this date a child will be fond of old persons, antiques and curios, and will probably gain by inheritance. Occasional disputes are also predicted.

Hints on Etiquette

Housewife shoppers, laden with bundles, are not popular passengers on street cars and buses during rush hours when workers are on their way home. If you are a housewife and can possibly limit your shopping to mid-morning and mid-afternoon hours, be sure to do so, and relieve congestion and avoid irritation.

Nothing is more disgraceful than for a man who is nothing, to hold himself honored on account of his forefathers; and yet hereditary honors are a noble and splendid treasure to descendants.—Plato.

PRESIDENT ASKS LAWS TO ADMIT DPS

Flying Discs Still Puzzling U. S. Residents

While "flying disc" stories spread over the nation, hundreds of people viewed the Pickaway county version in The Herald office and wondered.

Some believe the "contraption" found by Sherman Campbell, Westfall road, could be one of the gadgets reported seen in various parts of the country. Others say it is not.

General belief is that the six-pointed apparatus which had been attached to a balloon is used by the weather bureau to test wind velocity or some other phase of the department. The silver foil which covers it leads to the belief that it is kept track of by use of radar. In fact, Port Columbus weather bureau officials say that the gadget's description is similar to apparatus which is used by weather observers.

But the explanation fails to rule out the possibility that the contraption is one of the "flying saucers." Observers point out that, suspended from a balloon the many-angled gadget would whirl in a wind. Its silvery sides would reflect any light and every one seeing the reflected brilliance would have a different idea of its shape. From a distance no one could tell the actual shape of the contraption. Observers also point out that the spinning motion would give the reflected light the appearance of traveling fast.

MR. CAMPBELL first sighted the mysterious object on his farm near the Pickaway-Ross county line about a week ago. He thought at first it was an empty fertilizer sack which had bleached out white. While plowing July 4th he picked up the gadget and brought it to his barn.

Listening to news broadcasts concerning the discs Saturday morning Mr. Campbell startled his family by announcing "I think I have one of those things out in the barn."

His wife and three daughters joined him in further examination of the gadget and all agreed that it could be one of the mysterious objects seen all over the country. Mrs. Campbell called the radio station to which they had been listening and news of the find began to spread.

Only part of the balloon which had been attached to the gadget was the heavy rubber base and a small piece of the inflated part. On the heavy paper which covers the wooden frame appears the letters "W. V. V." Decipherable letters on the balloon base are "L. M. Y. RCX 210".

A similar gadget was found on the Flying M ranch near South Bloomfield Saturday and the state highway patrol said several reports of finding objects which answer the same description had been received.

TRUMAN WANTS U. S. TO GIVE REFUGEES AID

Homeless Europeans Should Be Extended Haven, Congress Told

WASHINGTON, July 7—President Truman asked congress today to enact emergency legislation permitting the entry into the United States of "a substantial number" of displaced persons in Europe.

Mr. Truman told congress, in a special message, that there are a million such persons in Germany, Austria and Italy. He said that this country should open its doors to a substantial portion of those who survived persecution.

The President's appeal to congress was a reiteration of previous requests that the United States become a haven for its share of Europe's homeless. However, he never recommended a set figure.

MR. TRUMAN explained that these people are the remnants of seven million refugees who already have been returned to their homes in Europe. He said that the remainder are survivors of persecution "who are unwilling by reason of political opinion and fear of persecution to return to the areas where they once had homes."

The President explained that the great majority of them came from areas now under Russian domination—the northern Baltic areas, Poland, Russian Akraime and Yugoslavia.

He said that a survey of the occupational backgrounds of those in displaced person camps in the American occupation zone show they have a wide variety of training in the professions, crafts, and various skills.

HE DECLARED:

"These are people who oppose totalitarian rule, and who because of their burning faith in the principles of freedom and democracy have suffered untold privation and hardships.

"Because they are not Communists and are opposed to Communism, they have staunchly resisted all efforts to induce them to return to Communist-controlled areas.

"It is unthinkable that they should be left indefinitely in camps in Europe. We cannot turn them out in Germany into the community of the very people who persecuted them.

"THESE VICTIMS of war and oppression look hopefully to the democratic countries to help them rebuild their lives and to (Continued on Page Two)

PLANES POISED TO GIVE CHASE AFTER 'SAUCERS'

Reports Say Squadron Of Mystery Objects Landed In Idaho Mountains

By International News Service

First report of a landing by a squadron of "flying discs" was followed today by a rash of new reports of their appearance in widely scattered areas of the west.

Oregon National Guard planes were on alert, ready to chase and photograph any of the mysterious flying intruders that come within their range, while attention of the curious—and the apprehensive—turned to the mountain wilds of northern Idaho.

There, according to nine persons, a bevy of eight shining "flying saucers" swooped on to a mountainside west of St. Maries, Ida., at twilight last Thursday.

The delayed report came from a Spokane, Wash., housewife, Mrs. Walter Johnson. She told newsmen:

"They came out of the south, travelling northward at extreme speed. They flattered and fluttered to the ground among the trees along the St. Joe river.

"There was no noise and the trees seemed to be undisturbed after they disappeared into them. They were as big as a five-room house."

Mrs. Johnson said that the point where the weird objects vanished was several miles away from the party that saw them, and night prevented a search of the rugged country. She said that she and a group of other (Continued on Page Two)

SEVEN PERSONS HURT WHEN AUTO RAMS INTO BUS

Passengers Escape Injury In Three Other Traffic Crashes Here

Seven persons were hurt and 43 others escaped injury in four Sunday traffic accidents in Circleville.

The seven were riding in a coupe which rammed the rear of a Valley Greyhound bus which stopped at South Court and Town streets to pick up a passenger at 5:45 p. m. The injured were removed to Berger hospital in Defenbaugh's ambulance, in the police cruiser, and by passing motorists. All were released after receiving emergency aid at the hospital.

The police report said the north-bound bus was operated by Charles T. Rohr, 973 Franklin avenue, Columbus, and that the bus carried 23 passengers. The rear of the bus and the front of the McCloud auto were damaged, and the windshield of the McCloud coupe was shattered.

At 5:15 p. m. Sunday three autos figured in a mishap on South Court at Logan street. Olan Lama, 44, Route 1, Rockbridge, driving south, started to turn left onto Logan street. The rear of the Lama machine was struck by a south-bound sedan operated by James Dawson, 64, Portsmouth. Driving north on Court street, Lloyd Gibson, 22, Detroit, Mich., ran his sedan over a curb in order to avoid hitting the Lama car. The uninjured car occupants included four in the Lama auto, three in the Dawson machine, and two in the Gibson car.

At 6:45 p. m. Sunday a coupe driven south on North Court street by Harry F. Davis, 21, Route 1, Stoutsville, rammed the rear of the south-bound sedan which Robert F. Hart, 35, Lancaster, had stopped for a red light at High street. Both cars were damaged. Unhurt were five persons in the Hart machine and two in the Davis auto.

Driving east on U. S. Route 22 at 9:45 p. m. Sunday, William J. Thomas, 61, Circleville, said he was blinded by the lights of an oncoming auto. He swerved his car to the left and struck the bridge over the Scioto river. His car was badly damaged but Thomas and a passenger in his machine escaped uninjured.

Corn Soars To New High Mark Again

CHICAGO, July 7—The price of corn soared to a new record price of $2.17 1/4 a bushel today on the Chicago board of trade.

The record was set by the July contract which since June 20 has been shattering the $2 mark consistently.

Last top price was established Saturday when July corn went to $2.13 on a commission house crop forecast of the smallest harvest in 50 years.

Today's record, made midway in the day's trading session, represents a price advance of 4 1/4 cents over Saturday's last price for the delivery.

The heavy demand for July corn is stimulated by unusually small spot market offerings and the fact that futures contracts for delivery this month are selling considerably below cash market corn.

Union Church Services Begin At Ted Lewis Park

Union church services sponsored by the Pickaway County Ministerial association and the Kiwanis Club began auspiciously at the Ted Lewis park shelter house Sunday night.

J. Wray Henry, president of the Circleville Kiwanis club, opened the service with a few remarks on the purpose of Kiwanis and the history of the union church services during the last three Summers. He introduced the Rev. Carl L. Wilson, president of the Ministerial association, who responded with an expression of pleasure in cooperating with the service club in such a worth-while community project.

The Rev. Mr. Wilson presided at the worship service by sounding the scriptural call to worship after which Charles Kirkpatrick, song leader, was introduced. Mr. Kirkpatrick led the congregation in singing the hymn, "Wonderful Words of Life". The prayer of invocation was offered by the Rev. Mr. Wilson after which the congregation sang the hymn, "Tell Me The Story of Jesus". Ushers from the Church of the Nazarene received the offering. The children's chorus from the Nazarene church with Miss Mary Lutz directing sang the anthem, "I Would Be True". Mrs. Roy Wolford and Miss Mary Lutz furnished a duet number, "Wonderful Jesus".

THE REV. ROY WOLFORD, pastor of the Church of the Nazarene, delivered a challenging sermon on the theme, "The Religion of Jesus Christ". The text was chosen from the General Epistle of James, chapter one, verses 18 to 27.

In part the Rev. Wolford said, "the religion of Jesus Christ is Bible endorsed and a source of rich spiritual blessings."

He enumerated the religion of Jesus as one in which a personality, that of Jesus, is centered. "It is a heart and life religion. It is a powerful religion because it transforms people's lives. It is a restoration religion because it restores man to his rightful place with God. It is a religion of glorious and triumphant conquest."

SPECIAL SESSION OF GRAND JURY TO STUDY DEATH

Special session of the Pickaway county grand jury has been tentatively set for Friday to consider the first degree murder charge against Ervin Eugene Trent, 22, it was stated Monday by County Prosecutor Kenneth Robbins and Common Pleas Judge William D. Radcliff.

Trent, a Negro accused of the fatal shooting of his wife, Mrs. Ruby Gossett Trent, 23, in their farm tenant home near Derby on July 2, pleaded not guilty, Saturday, before Justice of the Peace Harold O. Eveland. Trent is being held in the county jail without bond.

Sheriff Charles Radcliff, who claims Trent admitted the killing and confessed that he set fire to the dwelling in an attempt to "cover up" the crime, said that Trent has thus far given no indication of remorse.

'CORPUSCLES IN EYES' DOCTORS SAY OF 'DISCS'

CLEVELAND, July 7—Several Cleveland doctors came up with another explanation today of the "flying saucers".

Drs. Dwight S. and Elizabeth Spreng said the flying disks were nothing more than corpuscles in the eyes of the observers.

According to the doctors any person who looks at a bright background which is evenly illuminated will see the shadows of the red of white blood corpuscles moving in the capillaries over the retina of the eye.

Dr. Spreng said the corpuscles in the eye would appear like gray or silver disks moving with varying velocity of speed and with a jerky motion.

Ohio C of C Criticizes Rising Costs Of State

COLUMBUS, O., July 7—Ohio business doesn't like the rising cost of Ohio government.

The voice of Ohio's big business, the Ohio Chamber of Commerce, reported today that the 97th Ohio general assembly which concluded its deliberations just one week ago increased the state's level of spending for current operating expenses by 47 per cent over those of the last biennium, and by 67 per cent over the years 1943-44.

THE FIGURES, released in advance of the chamber's newest research study of state government finances, placed operating appropriations for 1947-48 at $477,203,552, as against actual costs of $325,410,956 in 1945-46 and $286,103,004 in 1943-44.

The forthcoming publication, entitled "State Budget of 1947-48," will be released in a few weeks, executive vice-president Herschel C. Atkinson reported. It is designed to show all major classifications of spending authorized by the legislature.

For personal service—salaries and wages—the legislature appropriated a total of $87,388,455, or 47 per cent more than the $59,596,087 in 1945-46 and 97 per cent higher than in 1943-44.

"Since the number of state jobs has not been greatly increased," said Atkinson, "the bulk of the 97 per cent increased cost for salaries in four years represents higher salary levels and upgrading of employees."

The chamber statement reported the total appropriations, excluding rotary funds, soared to $687,319,107, a 58 per cent increase over the $435,790,519 figure for 1945-46. It is 86 per cent higher than the $369,003,935 spent in 1943-44.

The figure includes all operating expenses, "additions and betterments" as capital improvements are called, highway, conservation and liquor department funds, and the contingent 25 million appropriation for a soldier bonus if the people vote a bonus November 6.

THE STATE HEALTH DEPARTMENT, the report shows, received the biggest proportionate increase. Its appropriation of $3,235,149 represented an increase of 187 per cent over 1945-46 and 274 per cent over 1943-44.

SENATE GROUP GIVES APPROVAL TO UN MANDATE

WASHINGTON, July 7—The senate foreign relations committee today unanimously approved the U. N. trusteeship agreement covering the mandated Pacific islands after hearing top ranking military and Navy chiefs testify that it completely protects American security.

Chairman Vandenberg (R) Mich., announced the action following a closed hearing at which Secretary of State Marshall, War Secretary Patterson, Navy Secretary Forrestal, Army Chief of Staff Eisenhower and Chief of Naval Operations Nimitz testified in behalf of the agreement.

COAL STRIKE ALMOST SURE AS DEADLINE NEARS

WASHINGTON, July 7—A coal strike appeared almost inevitable today as a four-hour session between John L. Lewis and northern operators failed to produce a new contract to assure re-opening of the mines tomorrow.

Charles O'Neill, chief spokesman for northern Appalachian operators, told newsmen after the meeting that "the contract still is not finished, but we are coming back this afternoon."

O'Neill, Harry Moses, head of U. S. Steel's coal subsidiary, and their attorneys, conferred with union representatives from about 8:15 a. m. to 12:30 p. m. (EST) today in an effort to complete the new mine wage contract.

HOLIDAY DEATHS PASS 500 MARK

Fatalities From Drownings, Plane Crashes Added To Traffic Victims

By International News Service

Smashups on highways choked with homeward bound motorists sent the July Fourth weekend death toll past the 500 mark today.

The tremendous outpouring of cars yesterday led observers to believe that traffic deaths might surpass the National Safety Council's pre-holiday prediction of 275.

Fatalities from drownings, plane crashes and miscellaneous accidents swelled the three-day holiday total.

IN THE EAST, where two million New Yorkers returned to the city by cars, buses and trains, the death toll for the state was 47. Sixteen deaths were due to traffic accidents and 16 from drownings.

The greater Philadelphia area reported 31 fatalities. There were 13 drownings, nine traffic deaths, six plane crash fatalities, one train death and two fatal fireworks accidents.

TAX CUT BILL TO BE UP IN HOUSE TUESDAY

WASHINGTON, July 7—The house rules committee today cleared the way for consideration tomorrow of the four-billion-dollar income tax cut bill vetoed by President Truman.

The bill provides for income tax reduction of from 30 to 10 and one-half per cent, depending on income, for the nation's 48 and one-half million taxpayers.

It is identical with the measure recently vetoed by the President, except that the effective date is Jan. 1, 1948 instead of July 1, 1947.

The rules committee limited debate on the measure to two hours. Speaker Joe Martin predicts that the Republican-sponsored bill will be passed without four hours after it reaches the floor.

CATCH KILLS MAN

BELLEFONTAINE, O., July 7—Excitement of landing a six-pound carp at Indian lake, near Bellefontaine, was blamed today for the death of a 68-year-old retired farmer from Mechanicsburg, Logan county coroner A. J. McCracken said that C. L. Gaver died of a heart attack while fishing with his wife from a bank on the shore of the lake.

persons plan to try to find the landing site tomorrow.

OFFICERS At the Spokane Army air base said that they were "studying" the report, but did not indicate that they would send planes to scan the area.

But if any more air mysteries develop over Oregon, a center of disc operations all last week according to numerous witnesses, planes are ready to take after them.

Eleven speedy Oregon National Guard fighters and bombers were stationed at Bend, Ore., in the heart of the state. The patrol flew from Portland to Bend without seeing any of the objects.

Several private planes established their own patrol over Portland. Discs were reported seen there yesterday by three persons.

BRIEF LANDING of a single "flying saucer" in Tempe, Ariz., was reported by Francis Howell. He said a circular object about two feet in diameter floated to earth near his home yesterday afternoon.

Howell said it went out of sight behind a clump of trees, and when he, his wife and several neighbors approached, the object rose again at a sharp angle and moved westward.

He described it as being flat and thin, apparently made of aluminum, and transparent.

Numerous persons also reported seeing from one to seven discs at various points in the San Francisco bay area yesterday. Their descriptions of the discs varied widely, from six inches in diameter to "the size of an automobile."

THE "FLYING SAUCERS" first were reported sighted June 24 in southwestern Washington. Although the Pacific coast, and particularly the Pacific Northwest, continues to be the center of reports on their activity, observers have claimed to have sighted them as far east as Augusta, Me.

They also have been reported from Colorado, Arizona, New Mexico, Ohio, Texas and Illinois.

The Army and the nation's leading scientists continued to be skeptical of the reports — although they were as full of theories about them as the man in the street.

HIGHEST authorities in the field of atomic research, including David Lillenthal, chairman of the atomic energy commission, and atomic expert Dr. Harold Urey denied that the discs have any connection with atomic experiments — if they exist.

The war and navy departments shrugged their collective shoulders, while an Army Air Force information officer, Capt. Tom Brown, said:

"This is definitely not an air forces experiment. We absolutely do not know what these flying discs are. In fact, we wish we did, but we're just as mystified as everyone else."

FBI AGENTS today reported that an object found on the grounds of St. Joseph's Catholic church at Grafton, Wis., was a circular saw, not one of the mysterious flying discs.

Finding of the object was reported by the Rev. Joseph Basky of the church. The priest reported the metal object fell on his parish grounds. He declared that he heard a whirring noise followed by an explosion.

GURNEY URGES EARLY APPROVAL OF MERGER BILL

WASHINGTON, July 7—Sen. Gurney (R) S. D., today urged the senate to approve armed forces unification legislation without delay and warned that "to procrastinate is to invite disaster."

Gurney, chairman of the armed services committee, presented to the senate the compromise bill worked out by his committee with the aid of high-ranking Army and Navy officials after 11 weeks of hearings.

The South Dakota Republican, declaring that "the time to plan, the time to prepare—is now," told the senate:

"It is not being an alarmist to point out that, with the development of supersonic planes and guided missiles with atomic war heads, the cushion of distance provided by the Atlantic, Arctic and Pacific oceans will no longer provide a corresponding cushion of time in which we may react to attack and mobilize our forces."

PETRILLO SAYS RADIO CHAINS TO BE STOPPED

WASHINGTON, July 7—James Caesar Petrillo, musicians' "czar," told congress today that his union will halt all transcontinental broadcasts of music programs after next Feb. 1.

Petrillo said the new policy of his American Federation of Musicians would prohibit local stations from transmitting musical programs originating in any other station.

He told a special house investigating committee:

"It would only be fair for each station to stand on its own feet. After Feb. 1, the AFM is not going to permit broadcasting chains to feed local stations."

The union chief, labeled a "dictator" by the head of the investigating committee, asserted there would be no transcontinental music broadcasts whatsoever.

Washington, D. C., listed 14 deaths, including a freak accident where a man was crushed while pushing a truck from a garage.

Michigan's death toll was 25, including 18 traffic victims and seven drownings.

DROWNINGS WERE near the 150 mark in the 48 states. Fireworks accidents took at least seven lives, including two small girls at Elkton, Md., who were killed when sparks from a firecracker exploded other fireworks.

A pyrotechnics technician employed as a fireworks safety expert at a Skowhegan, Me., fair perished when an aerial bomb exploded on the ground.

Florida deaths totaled 20. The worst of the Florida accidents occurred Thursday night when eight persons were killed in a car-truck collision near Tallahassee.

A plane crash claimed the life of Richard Emery, 29, son of Dewitt Emery, Evanston, Ill., president of the National Small Businessmen's association. The younger Emery was killed when his private plane crashed near Akron, O.

In the Midwest, Illinois listed 22 deaths, Indiana 16, Wisconsin 15, and Iowa 8.

FRANCO CLAIMS 'BIG VICTORY' IN SPAIN VOTE

MADRID, July 7 — Generalissimo Francisco Franco's government claimed "overwhelming" popular approval today of its plan for selecting his successor.

Interior minister Blas Perez Gonzalez, in the initial official announcement concerning the referendum whose outcome never was in doubt, estimated between 75 and 83 percent of the voters signified their endorsement of Franco's law. He added that the outcome, based on partial returns, will be announced tomorrow.

Perez said the estimate was based on examination of returns from such key points as Madrid, Barcelona, Zaragoza and the Basque opposition stronghold of Bilbao.

The voting was termed the heaviest in Spanish history. It was, in fact, the first time that the electorate had gone to the polls in Spain since the February, 1936, election which brought the ill-fated popular front to power.

Perez said that, apart from his personal feelings, he "never expected such a tremendous victory". The minister added that he realized that the disqualification of "politically-convicted" persons had reduced the total vote.

Justifying his prediction of "overwhelming victory," Perez stated that one Barcelona district voted 82 percent in favor of the measure which perpetuates Franco's dictatorship and provides for appointment of a successor by himself or by men of his choice.

Balloting generally appeared to have been carried out in a quiet, orderly manner.

TWO ESCAPEES FROM LIMA STATE HOSPITAL HELD

LIMA, O., July 7—Two of the four prisoners who overpowered a guard and escaped last week from the Lima state hospital for criminal insane were to be returned to the institution.

Supt. R. E. Bushong said that Robert W. Frost, 21-year-old Columbus kidnaper, and Clarence Underberger, 21, Dayton, accused of burglary, were captured by the Missouri state patrol near Kirkwood, Mo., to end a five-state search. Missouri patrolmen reported they were in a car reported stolen near New Lebanon, O.

Still at large were Ira Eden, 43, East Rushville, and Grover Spry, 23, Jackson, both accused of rape. All four had been sent to Lima for 30-day observation periods. Frost was to have been returned to Columbus this week for sentencing.

THE PARIS CONFERENCE

THE SPLIT between the western powers and the Soviet Union at the Paris conference need not be too much deplored. Every chance has now been given the Russian government to show willingness to co-operate with the rest of the world, and every chance has been turned down. The arrogance of Molotov's statement that all the European nations needed to find out was how much each country could expect from the United States was not only illuminating, but decisive in a way beyond all previous statements from that source. Americans wish to do Mr. Molotov and his people no injustice. But that's what the news sounded like to most American readers. They resented his attitude, and justly so.

Now the issue has been clarified. The Russian government does not wish to co-operate with the rest of the world. It does not wish to go it quite alone, either. It wants what is can get from the rest of the world, without giving up any of its gains, real or fancied, present or future. The reader is once more reminded of Churchill's keen statement that the Soviet Union does not desire war, but wants the fruits of war without fighting for them.

The Russian government in its present form is very young—not quite thirty years, in fact. Compared with Britain's 1200 years, thirty years is hardly more than infancy. Compared even with our 171 years, 30 is still pretty young. Those in control of the Soviet Union have much to learn. They had better begin speedily picking up some of the facts of life, especially that one that John Bull and Uncle Sam can be pushed just so far. When that point is reached patience ceases to be a virtue and things begin to happen.

If what happens next is unpleasant for the Soviet Union, let it be clearly realized that it had its chance, but chose to bring trouble on itself.

USED CAR PRICES

THE CURRENT practice of re-selling new cars for higher prices in used-car lots has provoked the attorney-general of Michigan into seeing if he cannot revoke the licenses of dealers concerned in such resales.

Once upon a time, the man who bought a new car and drove it at all, maybe just around the block, learned that the re-sale value of his car had depreciated several hundred dollars in that short drive. Now, the breaks are the other way. One mile or a hundred, and he can make as much as he would have lost before. The temptation is irresistible, apparently, to many thousands of owners.

It is the average honest man, who would like to buy a new, or even slightly used car without spending his life savings who is out of luck today.

NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, July 7—This Fourth of July, the most profitable reading—instead of the Declaration of Independence which we all know—should be the Moscow declaration against the Marshall plan (Tass text June 29). It was sparsely reported and little read. Yet those astute readers of the trends of today in the state department have found this document, making contrasting declarations against our theory of life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness, to be the most revealing new creation of principles for super-government. It discloses Russia.

It says: "the Soviet people has already carried out more than one five-year plan. At present the Soviet people is successfully," etc.

It makes a singular noun out of 195,000,000 people in Russia. It gives them a singular verb. The American people are, but the Soviet people is.

These Soviet people is progressing well in national economy and culture, says this official statement which is obviously calculated to make the hungry of Europe resist food and aid. The diplomatic skill of a Machiavelli would hardly be equal to convincing a hungry man he should not have food, but the kremlin advises it this way:

American capacity to produce expanded greatly during the war and therefore the only question is how Europe should divide up our surplus. Of course, we have no surpluses yet, and none in prospect except in wheat and rice. We cannot get an automobile. Our food prices are exorbitant. But Russia does not tell this truth of the matter. It tells the hungry of Europe, quote: "the rehabilitation and further development of the national economies of European countries could be facilitated if the U S A whose production capacities — far from declining — considerably increased during the war, rendered the economic assistance which these countries need."

Russia rejects the French plan for this, the British plan and the American plan, and submits a Russian plan which says that more than once, the Soviet Union quote "offered resistance to attempts at foreign interference in its affairs". The Russian plan is for Europe to take American aid, dwindle our capitalistic resources, and then Europe should go Russian (totalitarian socialist).

Thereafter Russia denounces another plan, which seems to be its own plan, namely any all-embracing plan to Europe to receive our aid, or restore itself economically with any outside help. Certain outside countries are striving toward intervention in Europe, says Russia, and this should be resisted by the conference. Apparently this means Rumania, Poland and Yugoslavia should resist Russia, as intervention has become strongest in those nations. But the "certain outside countries" are not named and thus the whole idea is to make European nations resist any non-European support.

The conference should only estimate how much of the American surplus is needed, says Russia. It adds this is no easy task and would take a long while, although any objective actuary in touch with the situation could do it alone in a few days. But Russia wishes to start as if she just came in and have the conference decide what European nations are entitled to our aid (we or they are not even at the conference at which Russia wishes to decide this). But the conference should start even before the

DIET AND HEALTH

What May Cause Backache

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

IT IS strange but true that the only complaint a patient may have is a backache when actually what he is really suffering from is an abdominal disorder.

According to Drs. Henry J. Tumen and Joseph C. Yaskin of Philadelphia, pain in the back is frequently caused by such abdominal ailments as gallstones, ulcers of the stomach or intestine, inflammation of the pancreas, colitis or inflammation of the bowels, and even by excessive amounts of gas in the digestive tract.

Many Conditions

Of course, backache may be produced by dozens of other conditions, some of them affecting the back itself. Among these are inflammation of the joints of the spine, tumors of the spine, muscle inflammation, or a displacement of some of the little disks or cushions of cartilage which separate the bones of the spine. Or again, it may be a symptom—often the only one—of a tumor of the pancreas or kidney.

Thus, the important thing to remember about backache is that it is only a symptom. Before it can be treated, the condition causing it must be discovered.

Within the Abdomen

When the backache is due to conditions within the abdomen, it is not accompanied by spasms of the muscles, limitation of the movement of the back, or changes in the curve of the spinal column. Physical activity may not cause any discomfort during the day, but pain develops during the night. Lying on the back may often make the condition worse, and the patient is usually relieved by lying in a position in which the spine is bent forward.

The pain caused by ulcer of the stomach or first part of the bowel may be felt in the back instead of the pit of the stomach. If the pain produced by such an ulcer is unusually severe, it may indicate that the ulcer has ruptured.

Collection of Gas
Collection of gas in the large bowel or colon may cause pain in the back just under the ribs. This pain is usually worse during the night or early morning, particularly if the patient suffers from constipation.

Thus, when the patient suffers from backache, it is important to know exactly where the pain is located, when it occurs, how long it has been present, and whether it interferes with the patient's activities. From these points, together with careful physical examination, including X-ray of the spine, it is usually possible to determine the source of the disorder and apply the most effective treatment.

MAKE ALL 26 CARDS AID

JUST AS during the auction, the fine bidder strives to reach the spot best adapted to his side's 26 cards, so the fine defensive player concentrates upon making his pair's 26 cards do the best possible job. That includes a proper amount of emphasis on helping his partner's hand to take tricks. The weaker defensive player is nearly always more bent on developing tricks in his own hand. In fact, that feature constitutes the main difference between a skillful defender and an average one—that effort to develop trick-takers across the table as contrasted with those on his own side of it.

West led his heart 3. Instead of the spades which his partner had bid first, East won with the K. Then for two reasons he returned his spade J—first because that suit was the longer and hence could develop more tricks in his hand than hearts, and second because he wanted to get out of the dummy the spade A, which could be a re-entry for one of the minor suits.

After winning that second trick, South scored the diamond K and A, gave up a third diamond to West's Q, and watched West return the spade 6 to the K. It made no difference what East did now. South was sure to get five tricks in diamonds and two in clubs, already had one in spades and was certain to get the ninth trick in one of the two majors. East saw that, too, so cashed his heart A and then gave up the ship with a return to the spade Q.

Upon winning the opener with the heart K, East should have reckoned that West had some good reason for leading the second suit bid by East. Possibly he had five hearts and a probable re-entry. East should have laid down the heart A to see if West played the 2, marking five in his hand. A third heart then would have cleared the decks. As soon as either defender then won any trick, more hearts would have set the contract.

The HOLLOW

Copyright, 1946, by Agatha Christie. Distributed by King Features Syndicate

SYNOPSIS

Among the week-end guests Lady Lucy Angkatell had invited to The Hollow were attractive Dr. John Christow and his dull, plain-looking wife, Gerda. The others, all members of the Angkatell clan, were: kindly Henrietta Severn, successful sculptress; young Miss Hardcastle, who supported herself by working in one of London's swank dress shops; David Angkatell, university student, and quiet Edward Angkatell, whose unrequited love of Henrietta made him unaware that Midge had long adored him. Unknown to anyone, Henrietta and John Christow had fallen deeply in love. Prior to leaving for Lucy's, John sat in his Harley Street office trying to fathom the mood of discontent which engulfed him, while upstairs, Gerda and the children patiently awaited his appearance for lunch. His thoughts went back to an earlier chapter in his life, when he had been madly in love with glamorous Veronica Cray, motion picture actress. He had broken their engagement when she refused to give up her career, and later had married Gerda, whose slavish devotion had left him no time to pursue his beloved profession. In Henrietta he had found the intelligent understanding which Gerda lacked. Recently, when exhausted after a difficult session with old Mrs. Crabtree, his favorite clinic patient, he had stopped off at her studio. He was annoyed, however, when he recognized Gerda as the model used for Henrietta's latest masterpiece, The Worshipper. Meanwhile, in the dining room, Gerda contemplated the cooling roast, and the coming week-end, with equal despair. She did not like the Angkatells and felt awkward and uncomfortable in their company. John's arrival banished her unhappy thoughts.

CHAPTER NINE

"IF YOU had sick people, you wouldn't be a doctor, dear," said Gerda, laughing gently.

"That's exactly the reason," said John Christow. "No doctors like sickness. Good Lord, this meat's stone cold. Why on earth didn't you have it sent down to keep hot?"

"Well, dear, I didn't know. You see, I thought you were just coming."

John Christow pressed the bell, a long, irritated push. Lewis came promptly.

"Take this down, and tell cook to warm it up."

He spoke curtly.

"Yes, sir," Lewis, slightly impatient, managed to convey in the two innocuous words exactly her opinion of a mistress who sat at the dining table watching a joint of meat grow cold.

Gerda went on rather incoherently:

"I'm so sorry, dear, it's all my fault, but first, you see, I thought you were coming, and then I thought, well, if I did send it back..."

John interrupted her impatiently.

"Oh, what does it matter? It isn't important. Not worth making a song and dance about."

Then he asked:

"Is the car here?"

"I think so, Collier ordered it."

"Then we can get away as soon as lunch is over."

Across Albert Bridge, he thought, and then over Clapham Common, and later, up Shovel Down—trees golden red—woodland below one everywhere—the soft autumn smell, and down over the crest of the hill.

Lucy and Henry... Henrietta.

He hadn't seen Henrietta for four days. When he had last seen her, he'd been angry. She'd had that look in her eyes... Not abstracted, not inattentive—he couldn't quite describe it—that look of seeing something—something that wasn't there—something (and that was the crux of it) something that wasn't John Christow!

He said to himself, "I know she's a sculptor. I know her work's good. But, darn it all, can't she put it aside sometimes? Can't she sometimes think of me—and nothing else?"

He was unfair. He knew he was unfair. Henrietta seldom talked of her work—it was indeed less obsessed by it than most artists he knew. It was only on very rare occasions that her absorption with some inner vision spoiled the completeness of her interest in him. But it always roused his furious anger.

Once he had said, his voice sharp and hard, "Would you give all this up if I asked you to?"

"All—what?" Her warm voice held surprise.

"All—this." He waved a comprehensive hand around the studio.

And immediately he thought to himself, Fool! Why did you ask her that? And again, Let her say "Of course." Let her lie to me! If she'll only say, "Of course I will." It doesn't matter if she means it or not! But let her say it. I must have peace.

Instead, she had said nothing for some time. Her eyes had gone dreamy and abstracted. She had frowned a little.

Then she had said slowly:

"I suppose so. If it were necessary..."

"Necessary? What do you mean by necessary?"

"I don't really know what I mean by it, John. Necessary, as an amputation might be necessary."

"Nothing short of a surgical operation, in fact!"

"You are angry. What did you want me to say?"

"You know well enough. One word would have done. Yes. You couldn't you say it? You say enough things to other people to please them without caring whether they're true or not. Why not me? For God's sake, why not to me?"

And still, very slowly, she had answered:

"I don't know... really. I don't know, John. I can't—that's all. I can't."

He had walked up and down for a minute or two. Then he had said:

"You will drive me mad, Henrietta. I never feel that I have any influence over you at all."

"Why should you want to have?"

"I don't know, but I do."

He threw himself down on a chair.

"I want to come first."

"You do, John."

"No. If I were dead, the first thing you'd do, with the tears streaming down your face, would be to start modeling some blasted mourning woman or some figure of grief."

"I wonder. I believe—yes, perhaps I would. It's rather horrible."

She had sat there looking at him with dismayed eyes.

The pudding was burnt. Christow raised his eyebrows over it and Gerda hurried into apologies.

"I'm so sorry, dear. I can't think why that should happen! It's my fault. Give me the top and you take the underneath."

The pudding was burnt because he, John Christow, had stayed sitting in his consulting room for a quarter of an hour after he needed to, thinking about Henrietta and Mrs. Crabtree and letting ridiculous nostalgic feelings about San Miguel sweep over him. The fault was his. It was idiotic of Gerda to try and take the blame, maddening of her to try and eat the burnt part herself. Why did she always have to make a martyr of herself? Why did Terence stare at him in that slow, interested way? Why, oh, why, did Zena have to sniff so continually? Why were they all so damned irritating?

His wrath fell on Zena.

"Why on earth don't you blow your nose?"

"She's got a little cold, I think, dear."

"No, she hasn't. You're always thinking they have colds! She's all right."

Gerda sighed. She had never been able to understand why a doctor, who spent his time treating the ailments of others, could be so indifferent to the health of his own family. He always ridiculed any suggestion of illness.

"I sneezed eight times before lunch," said Zena importantly.

"Heat sneeze!" said John.

"It's not heat," said Terence. "The thermometer in the hall is fifty-five."

John got up.

"Have we finished? Good, let's get on. Ready to start, Gerda?"

"In a minute, John; I've just a few things to put in."

"Surely you could have done that before. What have you been doing all the morning?"

and went out of the dining room fuming. Gerda had hurried off into her bedroom. Her anxiety to be quick would make her much slower. But why couldn't she have been ready? His own suitcase was packed and in the hall. Why on earth—

Zena was advancing on him, clapping some rather sticky cards.

"Can I tell your fortune, Daddy?"

I know how. I've told Mother's and Terence's and Lewis's and Jane's and Cook's."

"All right—"

He wondered how long Gerda was going to be. He wanted to get away from this horrible house and this horrible street and this city full of ailing, sniffing, diseased people. He wanted to get to woods and wet leaves—and the graceful aloofness of Lucy Angkatell, who always gave you the impression she hadn't even got a body.

Zena was importantly dealing out cards.

"That's you in the middle, Father, the King of Hearts. The person whose fortune's told is always the King of Hearts. And then I deal the others far down. Two on the left of you and two on the right of you and one over your head—that has power over you, and one under your feet—you have power over it. And this one—covers you!"

"Now!" Zena drew a deep breath. "We turn them over. On the right of you is the Queen of Diamonds—quite close."

Henrietta, he thought, momentarily diverted and amused by Zena's solemnity.

"And the next one is the Knave of Clubs—he's some quite young man—"

"On the left of you is the eight of spades—that's a secret enemy. Have you got a secret enemy, Father?"

"Not that I know of."

"And the Queen of Spades—that's much older lady."

"Lady Angkatell," he said to himself.

"Now this is what's over your head and has power over you—the Queen of Hearts..."

Veronica, he thought. Veronica! And then: What a fool I am. Veronica doesn't mean a thing to me now.

"And this is under your feet and you have power over it—the Queen of Clubs..."

Gerda hurried into the room. "I'm quite ready now, John."

"Oh, wait, Mother, wait. I'm telling Daddy's fortune. Just the last card, Daddy—the most important of all. The one that covers you."

Zena's small sticky fingers turned it over. She gave a gasp.

"Oh—it's the Ace of Spades! That's usually a death—but..."

"Your mother," said John, "is going to run over someone on the way out of London. Come on, Gerda. Goodbye, you two. Try and behave."

If It Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is are likely to encounter a year of the unforeseen, dramatic, adventurous and unique, in which sudden upheavals may be part of the excitement and thrill. While business matters may be surprising and dynamic it is possible that the emphasis may be on home, social or sentimental celebrations, parties, and impromptu ceremonies, in which elopements or unorthodox affairs figure. Rash, impetuous or drastic action of any kind might work against the felicitous and happy state of affairs. Enjoy circumspectly and consider the cost on all angles.

'ROUND CANADA - - - Hour by Hour

Pages From the Diary of An Antiquated Reporter:

Cranked the wagon and loaded down with the family and what seemed practically all of our belongings headed due North. Up and across the line into Michigan, over the Ambassador bridge into Canada, on to London and there called it the first day. Out and away at a reasonable hour the next morning and finally into Toronto. My idea of a city. Business practically suspended for most of the stores are closed all day Saturday during the Summer months.

Turned North once more and at the edge of town ran into a traffic jam. Everyone heading North. Not even at the OSU stadium or the 500 mile races have I ever seen more traffic. An hour and a quarter to move 16 miles. Under a blazing sun the radiator boiled practically dry. Hundreds of cars stalled and pulled off at the side of the road. Finally was able to keep moving, but slowly, and remained in tight traffic for 60 miles more.

Above Barrie did hear an unusual thumping, so pulled into the first filling station and learned that a tire was going to pieces and must be replaced. Left $35 and again took to the road. Called it a day at Bracebridge and put up for the night. Just half way to the North Pole, or so says a roadside sign there.

Inspected three restaurants before accepting a breakfast that could not have been worse in the first one. Canadian food is cheap, but generally terrible. Away then, and on through Calendar, North Bay, Sturgeon Falls and to Warren where did turn down under the west arm of Lake Nipissing. Then on America's worst road for four miles entering Shuswap, camp of the Greens and my favorite fishing spot. Pulled in front of the cabin with the radiator aboil again, but contented. Plenty of water out front and experience tells me that the fish are plentiful.

Roller pickles pinwheels are easy to make if you're handy with a sharp knife. Cut quarter-inch slices lengthwise from a loaf of fresh, unsliced white bread, after removing crusts. Spread each long slice with a thin mixture of real mayonnaise and a very little ham spread. Then place two or three small pickles, or a long slender section of a dill pickle, across one end of the bread slice, roll up tightly, secure with toothpicks or by wrapping in wax paper and chill thoroughly. At serving time slice thin pickle-centered pinwheels from the roll.

BASEBALL FANS JAM CHICAGO

Blackwell And Newhouse Stated To Start For All Stars Tuesday

CHICAGO, July 7.—Chicago's July sports boom took a turn for the waffle-tot today as baseball men, cramming three hotels and two public parks, second-guessed the starting pitchers and batting orders for tomorrow's annual all-star game.

Joe Cronin, manager of the American League team, and Eddie Dyer, who'll guide the Nationals, were to make their final decisions on those matters today. The "book" said Ewell Blackwell to start for the Nationals and Prince Hal Newhouse for the Americans.

Players, managers, moguls—and the ever-hopeful delegation from the Pacific Coast league—jammed their way into town, where they blended with golfers, fighters and high-priced horses.

THE DIZZY sports fan, however, was putting first things first—and the very first thing is the 14th renewal of baseball's all-star classic.

A capacity crowd of 45,000 will pack Wrigley field tomorrow to watch the Americans play visiting team to the Nationals. League president Ford Frick has announced for the 32nd time that the nationals had better win this one or else.

The before-day baseball news was interesting, as always, if not exciting. One more player change was made, Manager Dyer substituting his own Cardinal George Kuroski for Bob Elliott, the Boston Brave whom the fans voted to start at third base for the senior loop. That brought to six the number of Cardinals on the N.L. squad.

Elliott was out of the tilt due to a badly bruised index finger on his throwing hand.

IN THE MEETING rooms, Commissioner Happy Chandler called baseball's executive committee together to hear the Pacific Coast league's now-traditional plea to become a third major circuit. Once again P.C.L. prey Clarence "Pants" Rowland, assisted by several fact-and-figures gents, presented the coast's bid.

Elsewhere, the year-old players' committee awaited a routine session with the executive group. To be discussed, it was understood, was nothing more than the pursuit of night games, doubleheaders, and "off" days.

Experienced communications men reported that newspaper, radio and newsreel coverage of tomorrow's Wrigley field spectacle will equal, if not exceed, coverage of the 1945 World Series at Wrigley, in which the Cubs played the party of the second part to the Detroit Tigers.

SWEDISH HEAVY MAY NOT FACE LOUIS IN FALL

STOCKHOLM, July 7.—Olle Tandberg, unheralded 28-year-old Swedish heavyweight who thought he had earned a title bout with Joe Louis by winning a decision yesterday in a stunning upset over Joe Baksi, of Kulpmont, Pa., apparently was left holding the bag today.

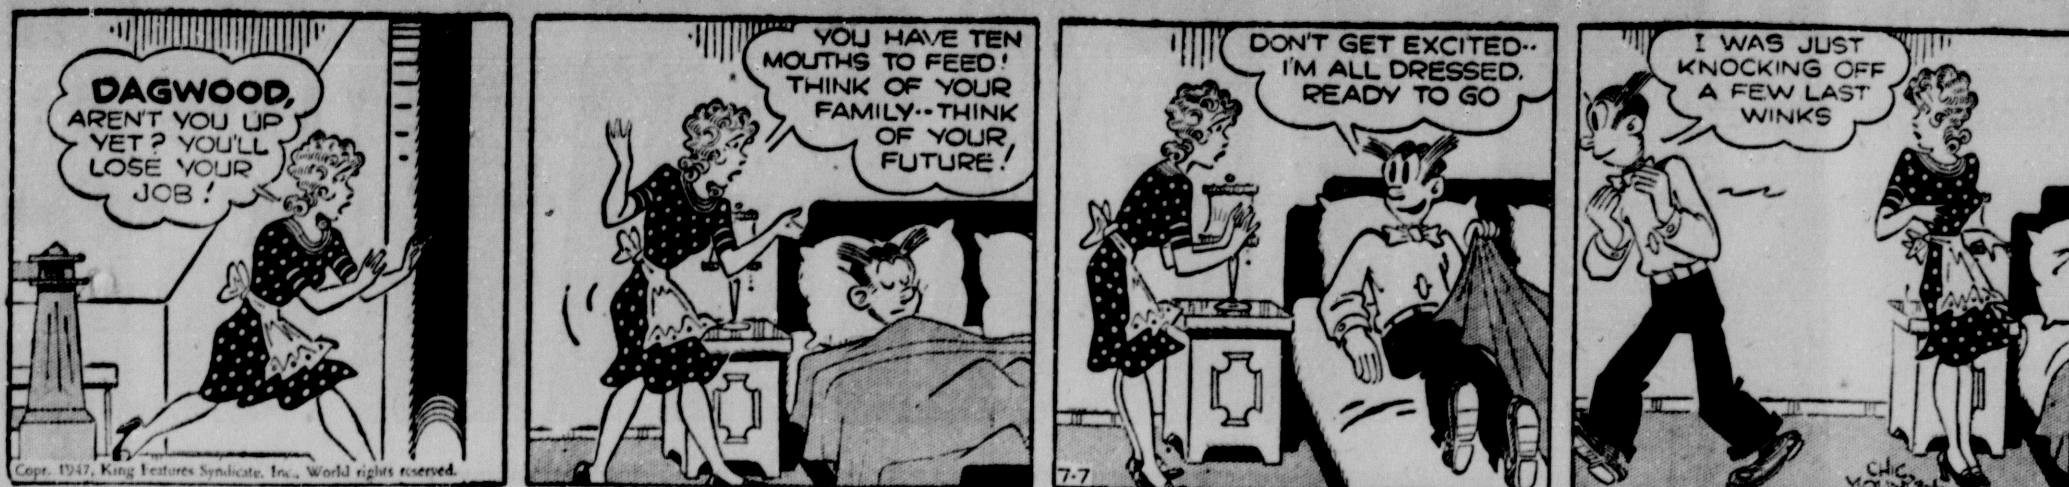

Olle wasn't sure himself he was outpointing the American in their ten-round bout, but two judges said he won (the third called it a draw) and the banner crowd of 32,000 cheered the verdict lustily.

However, many ringside critics and Lew Burston, representing the 20th Century Sporting Club, were unimpressed by Tandberg's victory. Burston, who had signed both fighters to contingent contracts to fight Louis at New York in September, said his organization would have to wait the reaction of the American press (which didn't see the bout) to decide about going through with its guarantee.

All that Tandberg could deduce from this double talk was that the champion's opponent will be selected by remote control instead of his guarantee.</
